IARR 2026 Conference Program

Glasgow, Scotland

July 8-12th, 2026

NOTE: To conserve energy, paper, & money, this year's detailed Conference program is available solely online in searchable pdf format. This current (7/8/26) version posted on the conference website (iarrconferences.com) is considered the "final" version to use for planning and presentation before/at the conference. After the conference, one more version–a Final Program of Record–will reflect those who presented (i.e., cancellations/no-shows removed). This will be available as a permanent historical document on the IARR website.

The International Association for Relationship Research (IARR) is an interdisciplinary organization focused on the scientific study of personal & social relationships. Our biennial conference brings together scholars, practitioners, educators & other professionals who study or apply relationship science.

Symposia Chairs

Further, most of this year's symposia are chaired by students, listed throughout the program. This gives them an opportunity to build their service record and encourages their continued exposure and interaction with scholars at all stages. They were coordinated & trained by Dr. Alvarez as an additional part of the professionalization process.

• • •

Please take time throughout the conference to verbally welcome students to IARR and to express appreciation for their active involvement.

Spread the love!: Bringing relationships science to society

Tila Pronk, Tilburg University, The Netherlands

We hold powerful insights about how relationships form, falter, & flourish. This privilege comes with social responsibility to share beyond academia. Given increased public science-skepticism & a global loneliness epidemic, this is now more important than ever. Over the years, I've engaged in public outreach (written pop-science books, hosted public lectures, developed professional workshops, collaborated with media, & created/performed theatre shows. In this talk, I share my mission & experience bringing relational science to society. Ultimately, this is a call to action. Our science can transform lives. Let's make sure it gets a chance.

12:30–2:00pm Lunch (Free Period)

11:15am–12:15pm Keynote Address #2 (Period 3) Main Auditorium

Introduction: Leah E. Bryant, DePaul University, USA

Remaking, resistance, & resilience: Challenging assumptions about relational processes

Kristina Scharp, Rutgers University, USA

Discusses how the communicative processes of remaking, resistance, and resilience can help people better disrupt and manage the inequities they experience and resulting marginalization with which they must cope. Based on her research about family estrangement, complicated health diagnoses, and disenfranchised college students, Dr. Scharp also illustrates how communication scholarship can inform a new theory, inspire a new research method, and translate to the public.
